The illustration depicts the Declaration of Independence of the United States, presented as a large, ornate scroll. The scroll is unrolled, revealing the text of the document, which is written in a formal, cursive script. The text is arranged in columns, with the title "DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE" prominently displayed at the top. The scroll is set against a background of a large, textured stone wall, suggesting a historical or monumental setting. The scroll is held by a large, muscular arm, which is part of a figure whose face is not visible. The arm is clad in armor, and the scroll is wrapped around it. The overall style is that of a historical painting or engraving, with a focus on the document and the symbolic representation of the American Revolution.

IN CONGRESS, June 11, 1776.

The Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, Publish this Declaration of Independence, and of the thirteen united States of America.

When in the course of human events it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. — That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, — That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its basis on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as shall seem to them to be most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, dictates that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly we have suffered much from the effects of the British Yoke, and the oppressive measures of the British Government, which have been the cause of our present situation. — But a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing the same line of conduct, has excited in the minds of the American People a respect for their rights, which is now no longer able to restrain them from asserting their independence.

Now the United States of America, do hereby declare their independence of the Kingdom of Great Britain, and that they are free, sovereign and independent States, entitled to all the Rights and Privileges of such States. — That the Declaration of Independence of the United States of America, is hereby acknowledged by the British Government, and that the same is hereby declared to be the Law of the United States.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, we have hereunto set our hands and seals, this fourth day of July, 1776.

British Stamp Tax

If one were to isolate a single incident which precipitated colonial America's struggle for independence, it would be the Stamp Act of 1765. If there was a point of no return, it occurred with the "Olive Branch" petition of 1775. This ten-year period marked a time in which a nation was fashioned, forged in the heat of frustration on the anvil of the North American continent.

An overwhelming problem facing the British Crown in the 1760's was the financial strain placed upon the English people — a strain furthered, in part, by the maintenance of British troops in the American colonies. The steady expansion westward called for even more troops to protect and secure this new land.

Rebellious Stripes Flag

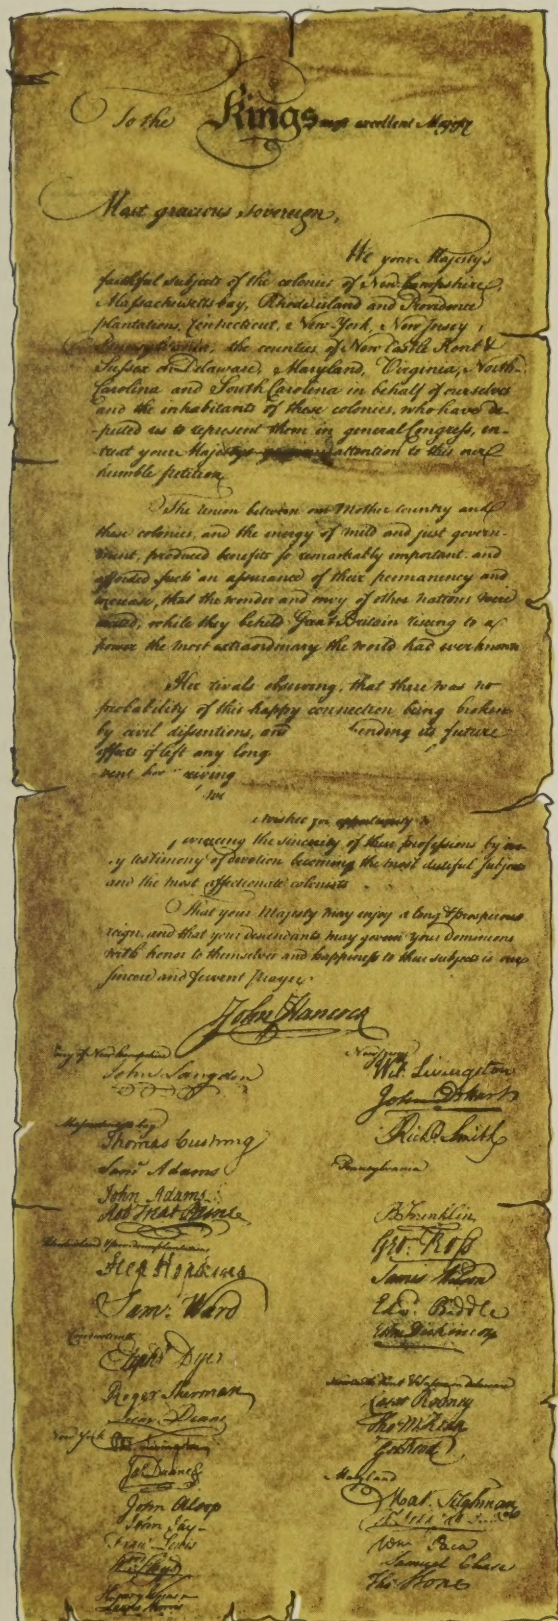

In 1765, by royal proclamation, King George III closed all land west of the Alleghenies to further immigration and expansion. Parliament, in order to force the colonies "to pay their fair share" for protection, passed the Stamp Act. Although this tax on documents and legal papers amounted only to £60,000 a year, there was instant outcry from the colonies against this internal tax. Many felt that it was one more burden in a list of repressive acts by the Crown.

Fear also existed among English creditors that colonial merchants and planters could not meet their debts and pay this additional tax as well.

The seeds of discontent were spreading through the colonies farther and faster than anyone expected. New problems of enforcing the taxes, conducting trials, and meting out punishments all brought further alarm. In Boston, Philadelphia, New York, Charleston, and even in Williamsburg, apprehension began to run high.

In a fiery speech before the House of Burgesses May 29, 1765, months before the Stamp Act was to go into effect, Patrick Henry "shook the spire of the Capitol" with his verbal assault against the Crown. Many cautious men who heard it, including a young lawyer named

Thomas Jefferson, suggested that "Patrick had come close to treason."

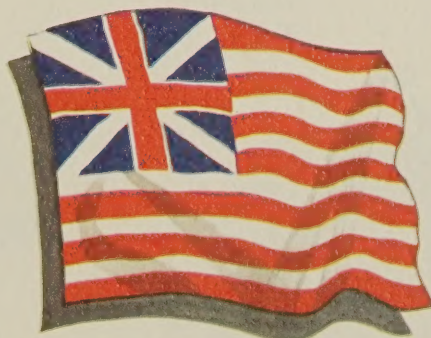

In small groups Virginians began to meet at the Raleigh Tavern and the Bruton Parrish Church to form a resolution. With the help of a colonel from Mount Vernon, George Washington, they framed the Virginia Resolutions. Before long all the colonies were adopting resolves, refusing "taxation without representation."

The spring of 1766 saw the repeal of the Stamp Act. But King George, fearing that other British territories would follow America's lead and refuse to pay their taxes, decided to make an example of the American colonies "by putting them in their place."

"Every man in England seems to consider himself as a piece of a sovereign over America."

Benjamin Franklin 1767

In place of an internal tax, external taxes were levied on such goods as lead, glass, paper, paint and tea. Several other acts, among them the Townshend Act, levying duties and permitting the search and seizure of property, soon became the law. Local government was giving way to control by "men paid by the Crown."

Through the years of 1767-69, tensions seethed just below the surface. Most of the trouble occurred in the port cities and surrounding areas. The press became more unified and more outspoken for colonial rights.

Sam Adams

In 1769, George Washington, in an address to the House of Burgesses, called for a set of resolves which stated "only Virginians could tax Virginians." Soon Virginia joined Massachusetts in an importation agreement. The colonies showed unity by boycotting English goods.

By the spring of 1770, after the tally sheets of British merchants showed a strong decline in revenue, the Townshend Act died. All that remained was a small tax on tea. The American patriots still were not satisfied. Skirmishes between the "Sons of Liberty" and British troops garrisoned in Boston, New York, and Philadelphia would occasionally break out, but not until March 5, 1770, was the real spark ignited.

A British sentry was standing his post that night in front of the Commons House in Boston while local toughs taunted him. Several other guards came to assist him and soon the mob had grown to considerable size. A shot was fired and, before order was restored, several colonials were dead or wounded. What soon became known as the "Boston Massacre" was a signal fire to militant radicals like Samuel Adams of Boston. Fanning the flames wherever and whenever possible, the rebels kept alive the spirit of independence.

England remained antagonistic to the cause of independence during 1771-72, steering a middle course with the colonies, trying for some reasonable solution. During this time, however, the Sons of Liberty continued to exchange ideas through the efforts of the Committee of Correspondence. Formed by Samuel Adams, the Committee used post riders to deliver pamphlets and letters dealing with the latest British offenses, and the newest hopes for colonial freedom. One of the best of these riders was the Boston silversmith, Paul Revere.

Meanwhile, Benjamin Franklin, Deputy Postmaster General, was in England trying patiently to work out the problems between the Crown and the colonies. It was here that he came into possession of some letters which indicated that

In 1773, the British Parliament again blundered, but for the last time. To assist the financially troubled East India Company, England gave it an exclusive monopoly on tea imports to the colonies. This sanctioned monopoly, combined with the tea tax still in effect, fanned the flames of revolt. As ships arrived, the patriots held "tea parties."

In Boston, Sam Adams organized 150 men, disguised as Indians, to dump 342 chests of tea into the harbor in protest of the tax.

Independence Hall — Philadelphia

This act was repeated in other colonial ports and was, according to the British, "the most wanton and unprovoked insult offered to a civil power . . . recorded in history." King George III knew what had to be done: "Suppress the revolt with troops, do not negotiate, make America obey."

The line had been drawn and the flames assumed the proportions of an inferno.

In the fall of 1774, delegates from every colony journeyed to Philadelphia to form the First Continental Congress. The time had finally arrived to display some unity of purpose.

Philadelphia, a booming city of 30,000, greeted her visitors with the jubilant sound of pealing church bells.

After much arguing and heated debate on procedures and voting rights, Patrick Henry jumped to his feet, saying, "Let free men be represented by numbers alone . . . there are no distinctions HERE . . . I am not a Virginian, I am an American."

The Congress put forth a set of resolutions similar to Massachusetts' "Suffolk Resolves," stating colonial rights to life, liberty and property, the rights to free assembly and exclusive power to determine taxation and internal policy. Thirteen acts of Parliament were declared illegal. Economic boycotts were to be brought against England, until such time of their repeal. All future imports from England were to cease!

During the winter months of 1774, tension ran high in Boston. More and more of King George's troops arrived. As cold weather also arrived, it became impractical for the troops to quarter on the Commons. General Thomas Gage, the British Commander, tried to hire labor to build huts, but to no avail. Unemployment was high, the British wages good but few Bostonians responded with any spirit of cooperativeness.

Keeping up the troops' morale was difficult, so marches were made across the bay to "the interior." On one such march, American arms and powder were confiscated by the British at Cambridge and Charlestown; the reaction to these forays was the organization of the Committee of Safety.

John Hancock, a wealthy merchant and shipper, was selected to head the group. The Committee was given the power to call out the militia — of the entire colony if necessary — at any sign of distress. Each unit of men had a few who were subject to instant call. They were designated "Minutemen." The Committee set about procuring arms and provisions for up to 15,000 militiamen, choosing Concord as a suitable depot because of its distance from the British troops in Boston.

The spring of 1775 brought British retaliation with new acts forbidding the colonies to trade anywhere except with England or the British West Indies. New England fishing boats were forbidden to fish the North Atlantic waters.

General Gage now faced the difficult task of enforcing these new acts of Parliament while at the same time trying to pacify the Massachusetts colony — an obviously impossible task. The concern of the Committee of Safety was soon aroused by the large troop movements being made outside Boston, and arrangements were made with patriots to warn the Committee if at any time more than 500 British troops left the city's garrison.

On the night of April 18, 1775, Paul Revere, was awakened and warned of British activities. While being rowed across Charles Harbor, Revere looked for and found his signal — two lanterns in the spire of Old North Church, the sign that the British were moving in force, by water.

Revere's main objective was to warn John Hancock and Sam Adams, who were staying in the Hancock-Clarke House in Lexington. After doing so he joined William Dawes and Samuel Prescott; soon they were ambushed by a British patrol and Revere was captured. He was later released without his horse. By that time, however, others had warned "every Middlesex village and farm."

General Gage's men were not in the best of moods: being aroused soon after going to bed, rowing across the Charles river, disembarking into knee deep water and standing for two hours in the cold night before marching off to Lexington-Concord had made them anxious, to say the least. All night long the sounds of bells ringing in the distance and men running through the woods kept them on edge. Arriving in the early morning on Lexington Green under the command of Captain John Pitcairn, the British troops faced two companies of Minutemen commanded by Captain John Parker.

The situation was not promising for the Americans, so Captain Parker ordered his troops to disband. Major Pitcairn, meanwhile, ordered his men to form a line but "on no account to fire or even attempt it without orders."

Who fired the first shot will never be known, but after the skirmish was over, 8 American patriots lay dead. The remaining militia scattered and the British marched on to Concord.

The Minutemen waiting in the grey dawn along the road into Concord had just received the news of Lexington Green when they saw the approach of the scarlet-coated British troops. The Americans withdrew to a hill to watch the British move into Concord. Major Pitcairn ordered the troops to secure the town and search for hidden arms.

Three companies were sent to hold the North Bridge. From the hill the Americans saw smoke and presumed the town was being put to the torch. They marched on to North Bridge. This time there was no doubt who fired the first shot.

In defense of the bridge, the British fired a charge of volleys; the first American to be killed at Concord was Issac Davis. The fire was most accurately returned, and soon the British were routed. As they began falling back, fresh patriots were arriving from distant places to replace others who "ran out of powder and went home."

Considering the number of shots fired, the casualties were relatively few; only 72 soldiers were killed of the more than 2,000 men who had been fired upon.

Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish i

By mid-May these new troops formed the New England Army. In Boston General Gage waited patiently and passively for the hour of conflict.

It came on May 10, 1775, with an assault on old Fort Ticonderoga on Lake Champlain. Ethan Allen and his Green Mountain Boys, assisted by Benedict Arnold and some Connecticut troops, quickly overran the small British garrison: although the fort itself was situated on a "useless piece of land," within lay a vast array of artillery.

June 17, 1775, the first major encounter between British and American forces occurred above Charlestown, across the river from Boston. The Americans intended to entrench on Bunker Hill, but, in the dark, they mistakenly dug into Breed's Hill, a position closer to the water and therefore to the British gunboats. Later it was called "The Battle of Bunker Hill," even though little fighting took place there.

The events of April 19, 1775, ushered a new order into America. The cautious, the moderate, the conservative elements joined with the extreme and the liberal to form a common bond. They promised to defend each other with "their lives and their fortunes."

The War had begun!

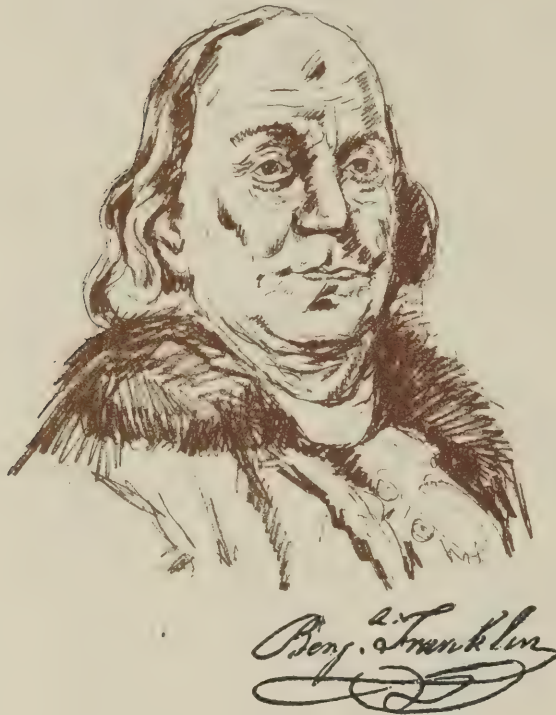

Soon the colonies of North and South Carolina were raising money and troops to join the cause. The most immediate action, however, came from Massachusetts' northern neighbors: from Connecticut, Israel Putnam brought 3,000 men, including the Governor's own foot guards led by Benedict Arnold; Rhode Island sent troops commanded by handsome Nathaniel Green; New Hampshire sent the old Indian fighter Colonel John Stark with a force of "rugged men."

d to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its power

"Yes, we must indeed all hang together or most assuredly we shall all hang separately."

Benjamin Franklin 1776

Poor planning also sent them with no provisions for food or extended ammunition. Early in the morning General Gage ordered the gunboats to lay seige to the Hill. After an all morning shelling, the city of Charlestown was ablaze, and even seasoned troops would have been justified in giving ground. The green American troops remained, however, forcing the British troops to cross the Charles River and begin a frontal assault. Three times the Americans repelled the attack; finally, having spent their ammunition, they retreated across the small neck of the Peninsula to the safety of the mainland.

It had been a costly lesson for the British; of the 2,300 men in the assault, 1,054 were dead or wounded. Had the British chosen to cut off the retreat route, it would have been a costly blow to the American cause; however, governed as they were by the gentlemanly tradition of warfare they had known in countless wars with the French, the English chose instead to gallantly assault the entrenched Americans from the front. As a result, the British marched with honor to defeat. If victory was ever to be theirs, English generals would have to alter their tactics.

On the same day in Philadelphia the Second Continental Congress also made history. John Adams presented before the delegates his "Grand Plan" for a Continental Army, consisting of soldiers from every colony. He went on to nominate Colonel George Washington as its commanding general.

Discussion lasted two days before Thomas Jefferson, presiding that day as head of the Congress, was asked to inform George Washington, Esq. of "the unanimous vote . . . to be Commanding General and Commander-in-Chief of the forces to be raised in defense of American liberty."

Washington, concerned about his inexperience with such an "extensive and important trust," accepted the responsibility with humility and some reservation. "As no pecuniary consideration could have tempted me to have accepted this arduous employment . . .," he stated, "I do not wish to make a profit from it."

The Congress made one final effort in July, 1775, to settle the differences between the Crown and the colonies. The "Olive Branch" petition, as it was called, was signed by 25 of the same men who a year later would sign the Declaration of Independence. King George refused to see the bearer of this document, William Penn's grandson, Richard.

rs in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, ed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient

General Washington worked through the fall of '75, reviewing his military assets and liabilities. He visited the various commanders and built confidence in his "chain of command." Recruiting was difficult because many had enlisted for only eight months and would have to be talked into re-enlisting. The only arms they had were their personal rifles. The present extent of Washington's artillery was that captured from the British at Ticonderoga, 300 wilderness miles away from Boston where it was needed.

During the December 31st attack on the citadel city of Quebec, a devastating defeat was suffered by the American armies in the north and many fine troops were wasted in the deadly cold and snow. General Richard Montgomery was killed and Colonel Benedict Arnold was wounded.

It was a demoralized force that retreated back through the ice and snow down the St. Lawrence to old Fort Ticonderoga that January, and only through the courage displayed by Arnold were they able to persevere. Later that spring the British sent a flotilla with additional men into Canada.

In Boston, General Howe quietly replaced General Gage as British Commander.

While Boston lay blockaded to the East, and the Northern armies of Benedict Arnold licked their wounds and tried to regroup after defeat, the Continental Congress debated what the next course of action should be for the colonies in their relationship with England.

Conservatives were afraid that any further talk of Independence would "mean suicide" for the colonies. They argued that it had been the English Parliament and not the King that had injured them. About this time, the Englishman Thomas Paine, newcomer to the colonies and friend of Ben Franklin, issued a pamphlet entitled "Common Sense."

Here for the first time the thoughts John Adams had voiced were articulated in every day language for everyone to read. An attack on the very institution of Royalty, "Common Sense" helped promote the idea of independence as a concept to be sought by all people.

Early in the spring of 1776, King George's message to Parliament reached the colonies. The few remaining conservative elements in Congress who believed a reconciliation was possible were most disturbed. The colonies' protest for rights was labeled a "desperate conspiracy to establish an independent empire."

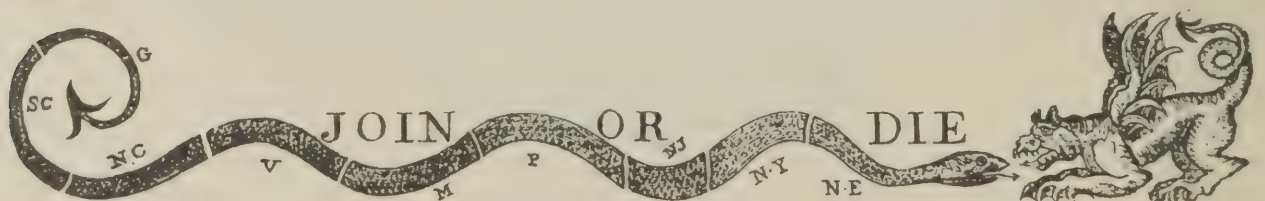

England hired mercenaries from central Germany to fight in the colonies under the British flag.

The only good news that spring was that Henry Knox, with a group of teamsters and oxen, had delivered 59 excellent field pieces of every description and size to Boston after weeks of journey through treacherous snow from Fort Ticonderoga.

After one surprise bombardment, the British evacuated their troops from Boston. The Americans' joy was overshadowed by the realization that the British would return.— perhaps landing.

Accepting resolutions from the delegates of the thirteen colonies, Congress appointed a committee to draft a response to the Crown, against such time as a vote for independence should take place.

Forming the committee were John Adams, cousin of the militant Sam Adams; Benjamin Franklin, the learned doctor, printer, statesman and writer;

causes; and accordingly all experience hath shown, that mankind are more disposed to suffer, w

Thomas Jefferson, the thirty-three year old lawyer from Virginia who brought with him a reputation for literature, science, and a happy talent for composition; Roger Sherman from Connecticut; and Robert R. Livingston of New York. The actual task of drafting the paper fell to Jefferson, who protested that he already had pressing business in Williamsburg — that of drafting a workable constitution for Virginia. The protestations were waved aside, and he was left alone to choose the words that would create a new republic. Occasionally during those “days before July,” Franklin or another colleague would visit to offer a minor change. On or about the 28th of June, Jefferson copied his “rough draft,” on which all later major changes were noted. The copy was presented to Congress the “First day of July,” 1776.

The Declaration was read and opened for debate. John Dickenson of Pennsylvania strongly objected to the document: “I had rather forfeit popularity forever, than vote away the blood and happiness of my countryman . . . it is like destroying our house in winter . . . before we have another shelter.” Thus argued the man who would later defend America as a private in the Continental Army. John Adams spoke later in the day, as lightning crashed and driving rain pounded the Philadelphia State House. Nature herself, it seemed, suffered the selfsame pangs as those locked in heated debate within. The following day, as more delegates arrived, the vote for independence was taken and approved. Now it remained to vote for the Declaration itself, which would explain to the world why the fight for independence was necessary.

“Tyranny, like Hell, is not easily conquered: yet we have this consolation with us, that the harder the conflict the more glorious the triumph.”

Thomas Paine 1776

On this anniversary day, two hundred years ago, July 4, 1776, a bellman was waiting in the steeple of the red brick State House for a signal from a boy stationed at the door below. On the bell was an inscription from Leviticus: “Proclaim liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof”. Early in the evening, the boy clapped his hands and shouted, “Ring! Ring!”

It was a jubilant sound signaling the colonies’ proclamation of freedom, yet doleful in its warning of the dangers which lay ahead. A new nation would now have to earn its declared freedom. To do so its citizens pledged their lives, their fortunes, and their sacred honor.

IN CONGRESS, JULY 4, 1776

The unanimous Declaration of the thirteen united States of America.

Where in the bosom of human events it becomes necessary for one people to depose the political bonds which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth; the separate and equal station to which the laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a solemn respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.

That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, — That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all reference hitherto, that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute Despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide new Guards for their future security. — Such has been the patient Sufferance of these Colonies; and now the necessity which compels them to alter their former systems of Government.

The history of the present King of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute Tyranny over these States. To prove this, let facts be submitted to a candid world?

He has refused his Assent to Laws, the most wholesome and necessary for the public good. — He has forbidden his Governors to pass Laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless they be assented to by his Assent: till his Assent should be obtained, and when assented to, he has utterly neglected to attend to them. — He has refused to sign other Laws for the accommodation of large districts of People, unless those People would relinquish the right of Representation in the Legislature, a right inestimable to them and formidable to tyrants only. — He has called together legislative Bodies at places unusual, unusual, and distant from the Depository of the public Records, for the purpose of eluding them and to prevent only compliance with the measures. — He has dissolved Representative Houses repeatedly, for opposing with manly firmness his invasions on the rights of the People. — He has refused for a long time after such Dissolutions, to cause others to be elected, whereby the legislative Powers, on capable of Annihilation, have returned to the People at large for their exercise, the State remains for a long time exposed to all the dangers of anarchy from without, and convulsions within? — He has endeavored to prevent the Population of these States, for that purpose obstructing the Law for Naturalization of Strangers, refusing to pass others to encourage their migrations hither, and raising the conditions of new Appropriations of Lands. — He has obstructed the Administration of Justice, by refusing his Assent to Laws for establishing Judiciary powers. — He has made Justice dependent on his Will alone, for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their salaries. — He has erected a multitude of New Offices, and sent hither swarms of Officers to harass our People and eat out our substance. — He has kept among us, in times of peace, Standing Armies, without the Consent of our Legislatures. — He has affected to render the Military independent of and superior to the civil Power. — He has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our constitution, and unacknowledged by our Laws; giving his Assent to their Act of pretended Legislation. — For quartering large bodies of armed troops among us. — For protecting them by a mock trial from punishment for any Murders which they should commit on the Inhabitants of these States. — For cutting off our Trade with all parts of the world. — For imposing Taxes on us without our Consent. — For depriving us in many cases of the benefit of Trial by Jury. — For transporting us beyond Seas, to be tried for pretended offences. — For abolishing the free System of English Laws in a neighboring Province, establishing therein an Arbitrary government, and enlarging its Boundaries so as to include us at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these Colonies. — For taking away our Charters, abolishing our most valuable Laws and altering fundamentally the Forms of our Governments. — For suspending our own Legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with power to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever. — He has dissolved Representative Houses repeatedly, for opposing with manly firmness his invasions on the rights of the People. — He has refused to assent to Laws for the accommodation of large districts of People, unless those People would relinquish the right of Representation in the Legislature, a right inestimable to them and formidable to tyrants only. — He has called together legislative Bodies at places unusual, unusual, and distant from the Depository of the public Records, for the purpose of eluding them and to prevent only compliance with the measures. — He has dissolved Representative Houses repeatedly, for opposing with manly firmness his invasions on the rights of the People. — He has refused for a long time after such Dissolutions, to cause others to be elected, whereby the legislative Powers, on capable of Annihilation, have returned to the People at large for their exercise, the State remains for a long time exposed to all the dangers of anarchy from without, and convulsions within? In Memoriam

C. Nelson Payne

In appreciation of his willingness to help, his praise and criticism, his love for Franklin County High School, and his exemplary, courageous career in education, we fondly dedicate the 1976 Animo in memory of Mr. C. Nelson Payne.

It all began a number of months ago when the Animo staff decided that we wanted to celebrate America's bicentennial in a way that no one else could. We knew that we had the opportunity to publish a once-in-a lifetime yearbook.

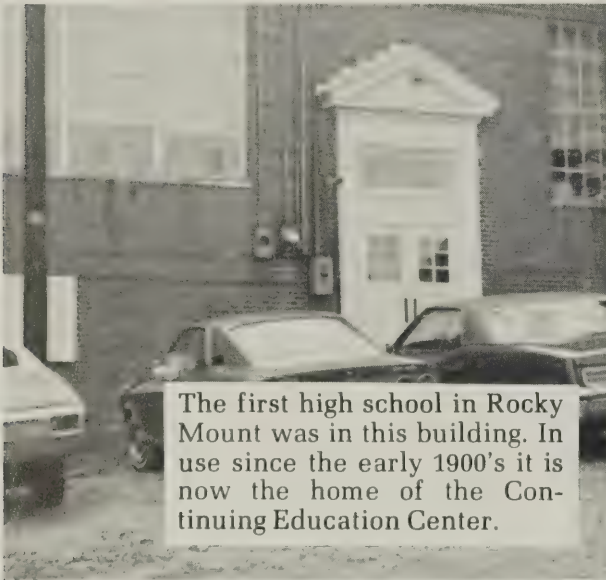

We agreed to visit the high schools that our parents had attended, churches that were erected in the 1800's and 1900's, and other landmarks of interest to the staff. Of course we had to limit our selection, so forgive us if you did not picture your favorites.

We dressed in costumes belonging to our grandparents to show how styles have changed.

We think we have created a yearbook different from any other.

We present this yearbook with pride, with care, and with devotion.

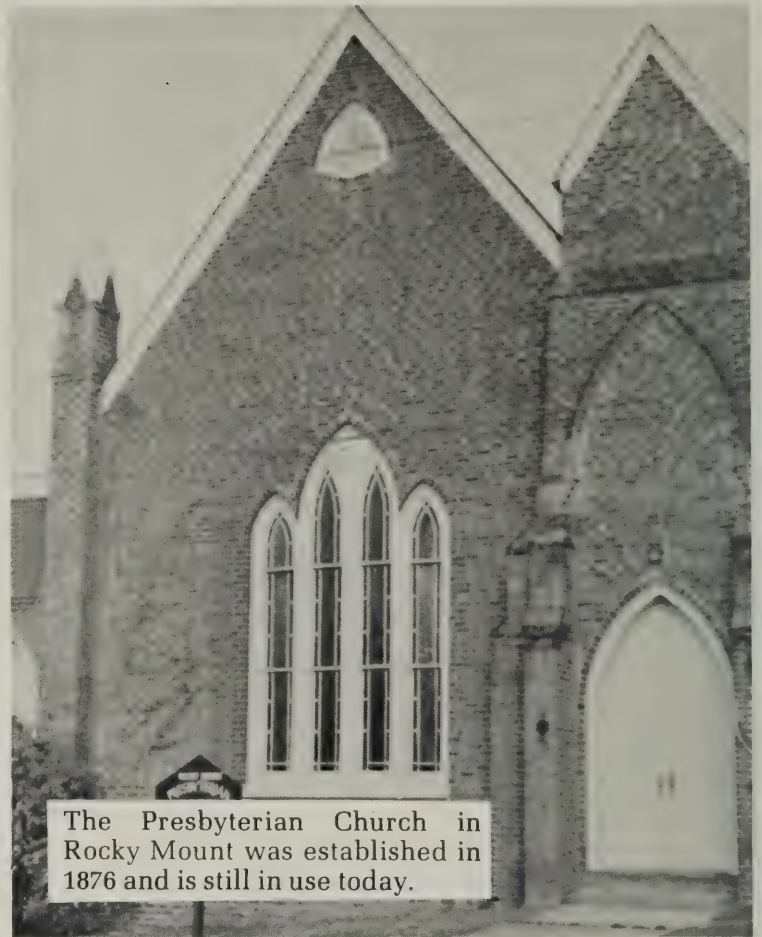

Old Buildings —

The first high school in Rocky Mount was in this building. In use since the early 1900's it is now the home of the Continuing Education Center.

This is the present high school. We have come a long way!

The Presbyterian Church in Rocky Mount was established in 1876 and is still in use today.

The School Board, housed in a building erected in 1860, continues to make plans for Franklin County School.

— Old Styles

Peggy Wright is dressed in a beautiful lacey white dress and it looks as though it might be a wedding dress.

Junior Brown, Kim Mason, Phyllis Adams, and Donna Moore wear the styles of our great-grandmothers and grandfathers.

1776 — Lace and Bonnets

Happy faces and pretty ruffles, were bright and cheerful as ladies dressed in large flounces, bonnets, ribbons and lace.

Oldies

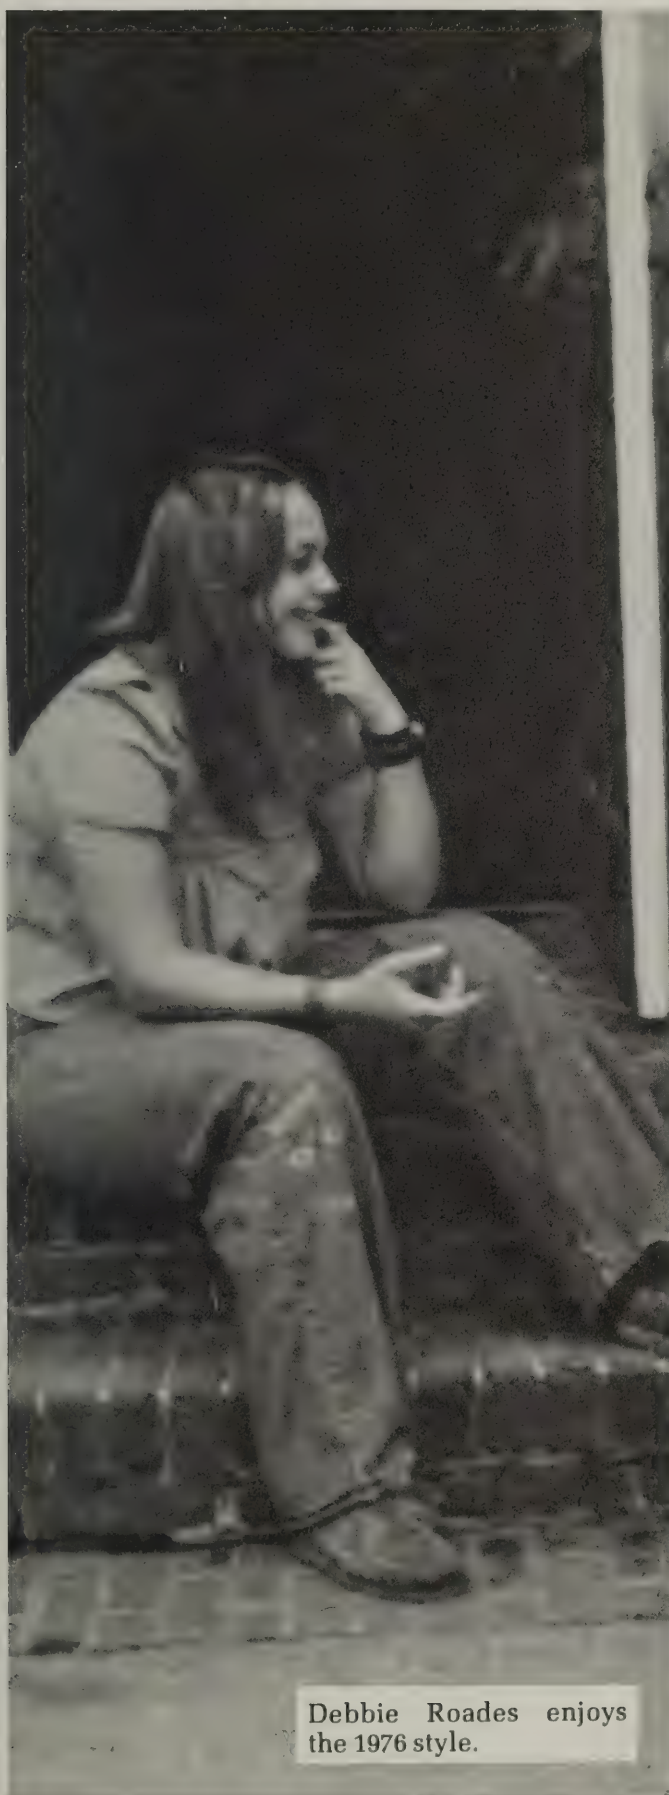

Mary Lou Angell sits in an every day dress used by our elders.

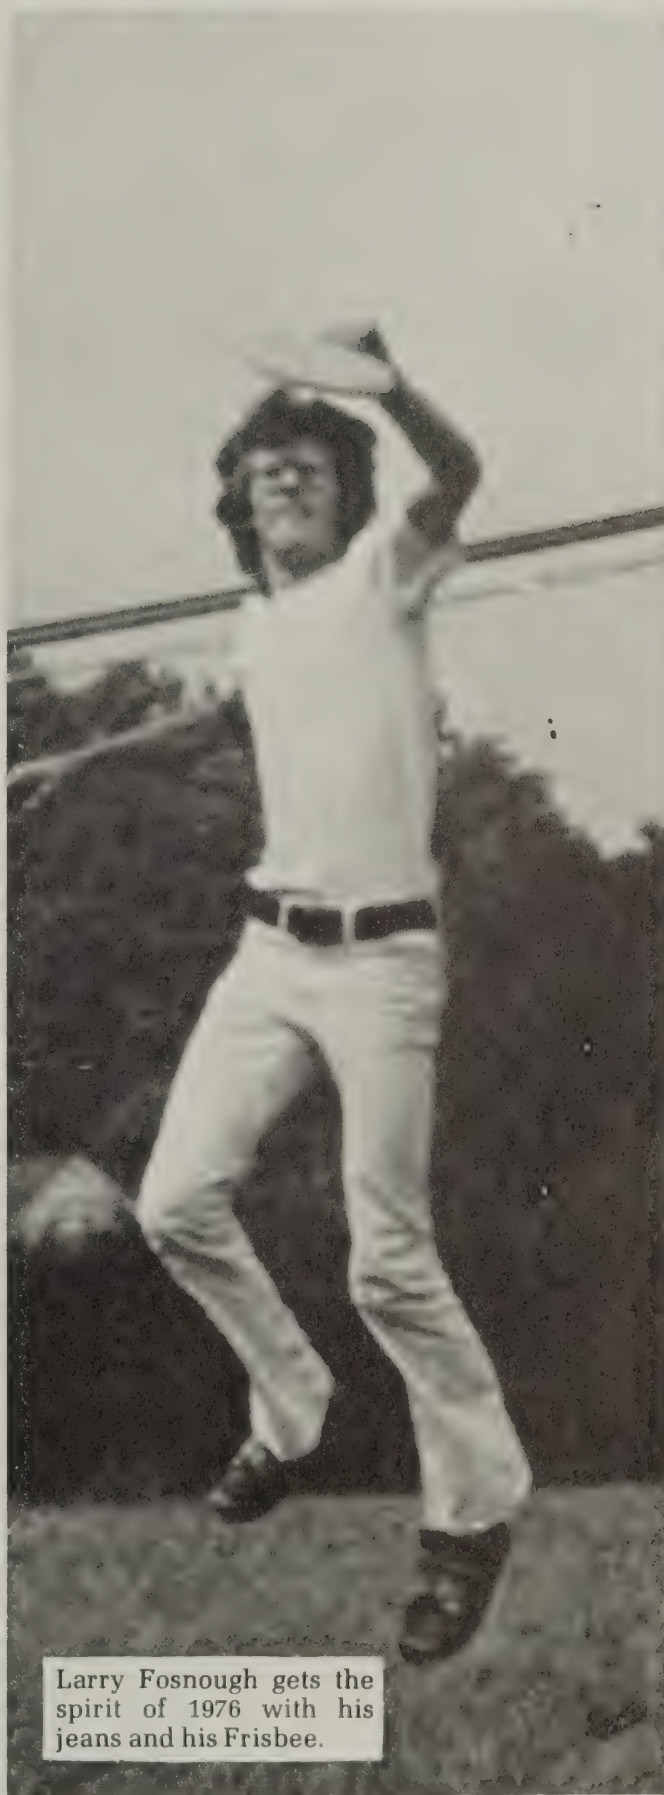

Phyllis Adams is wearing a dress with lots of ruffles and a bonnet and she looks as if she's going to visit a friend.

Vs Jeans and Bandanas — 1976

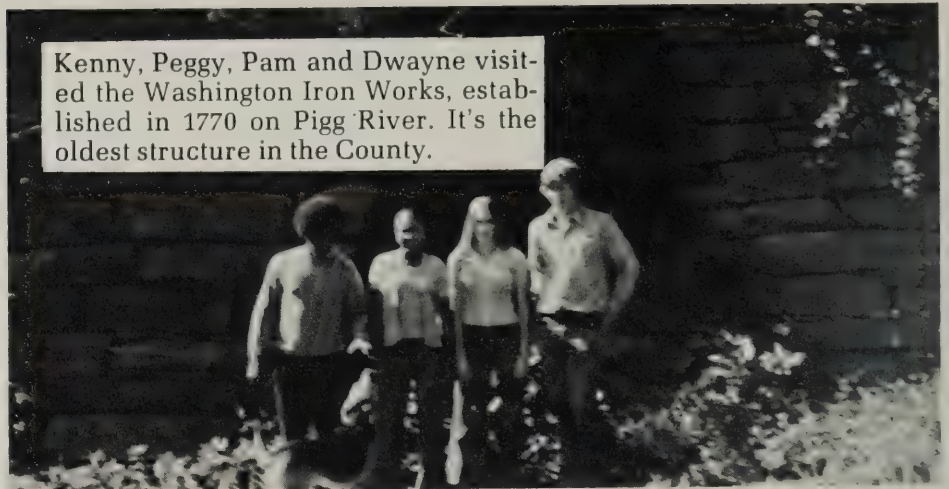

Debbie Roades enjoys the 1976 style.

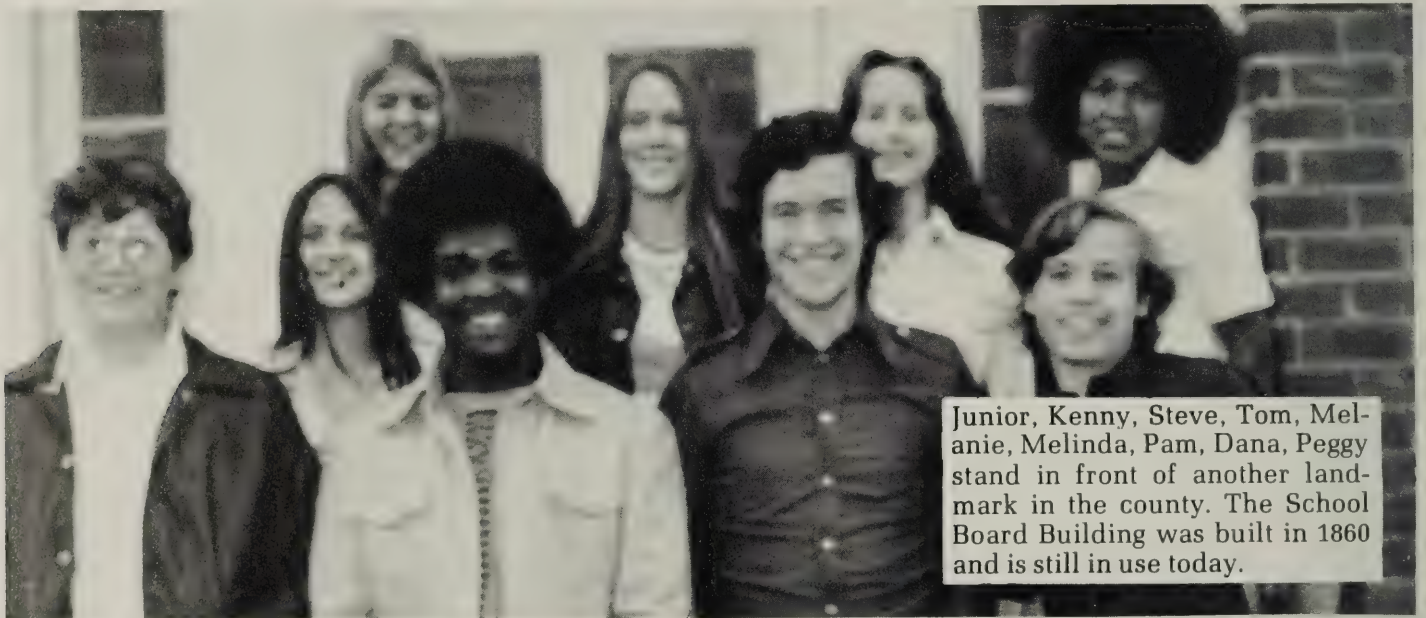

Larry Fosnough gets the spirit of 1976 with his jeans and his Frisbee.

Staff Visits Landmarks in Each member of the Animo staff had his favorite landmark for others to see. Here are the oldest and most famous landmarks in Franklin County as we see it.

Kenny, Peggy, Pam and Dwayne visited the Washington Iron Works, established in 1770 on Pigg River. It's the oldest structure in the County.

Junior, Kenny, Steve, Tom, Melanie, Melinda, Pam, Dana, Peggy stand in front of another landmark in the county. The School Board Building was built in 1860 and is still in use today.

Peggy, Kenny, and Dana stand at the entrance of the Episcopal Church. The original building was built in 1874 and rocked in 1906.

Franklin County

Pam and Peggy said, "Thank God for electricity!" As they show the tub and scrub board used during the early days at Booker T. Washington birthplace.

Fairmount Baptist Church was Melanie's favorite landmark. It was founded 1855 and has grown considerably.

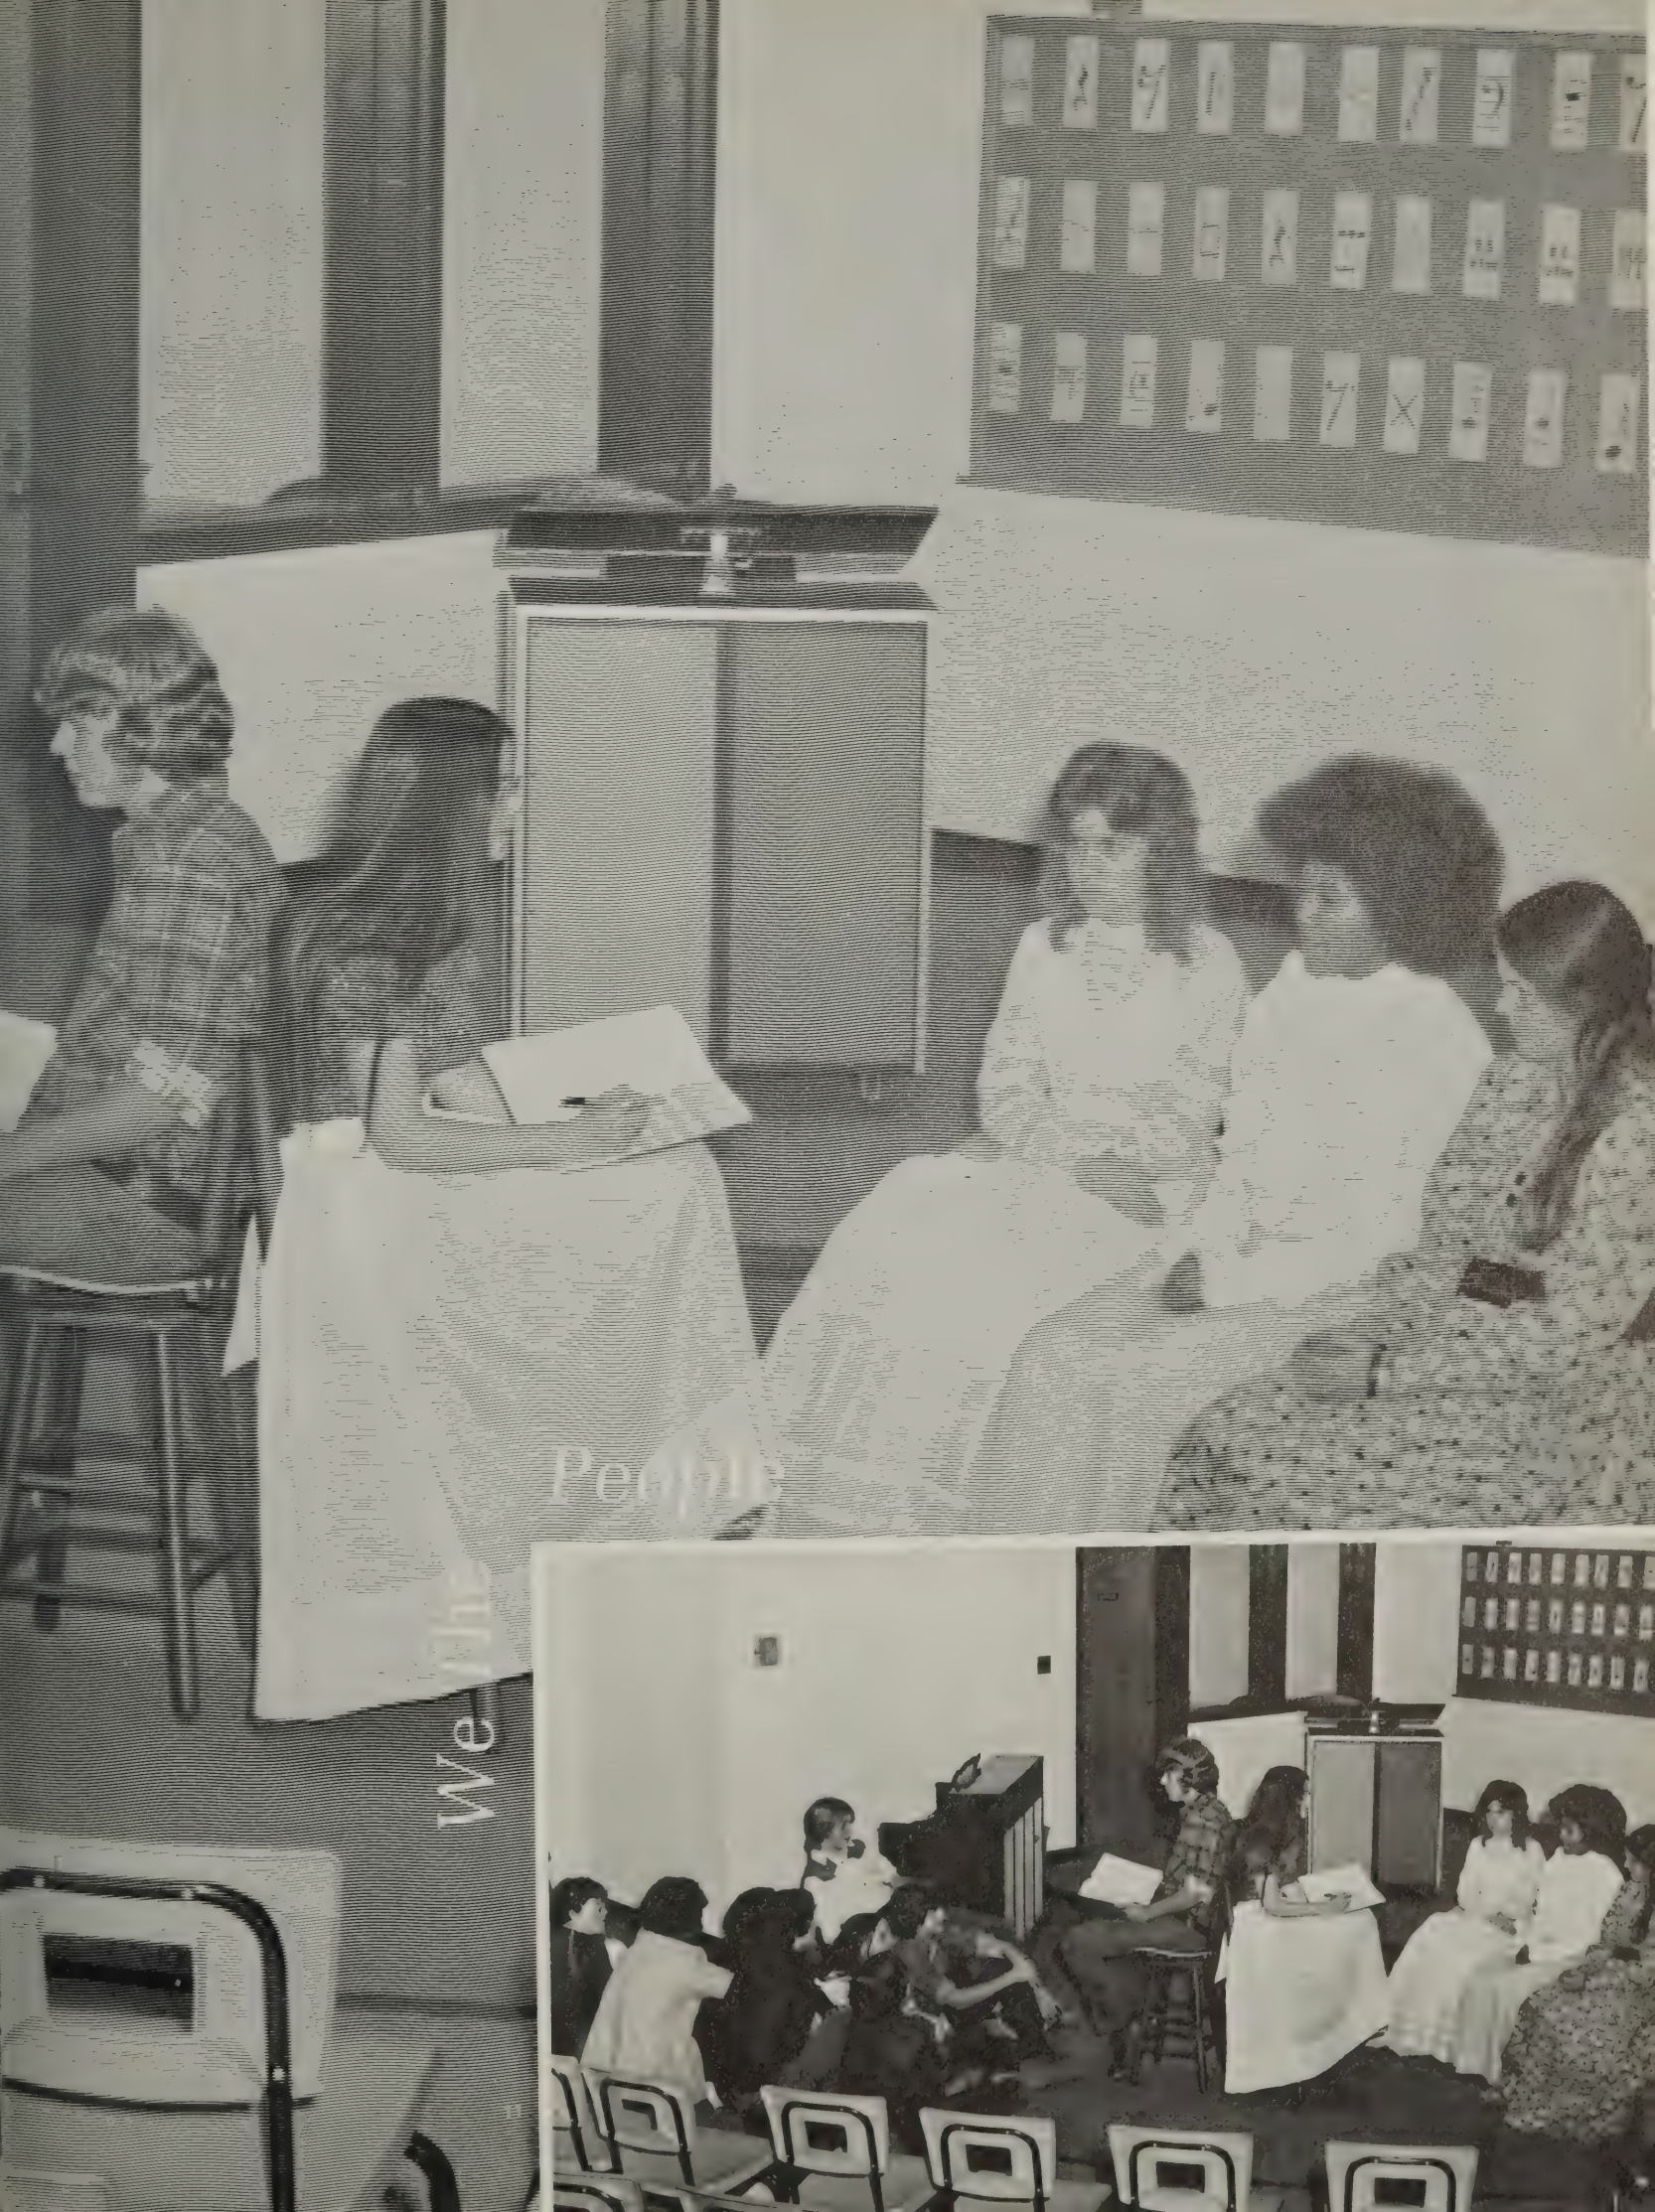

Dwayne and Kenny "horse around" with tools used during the early 1900's.

Showing one view of Fairmount, Mary Lou, Gayle Mass, and Phyllis Adams stand at the front of the church.

Leadership and Guidance Provided by Administration

As Superintendent of Franklin County School, Mr. C.I. Dillon and his administrative staff worked diligently toward improving the educational system of the county.

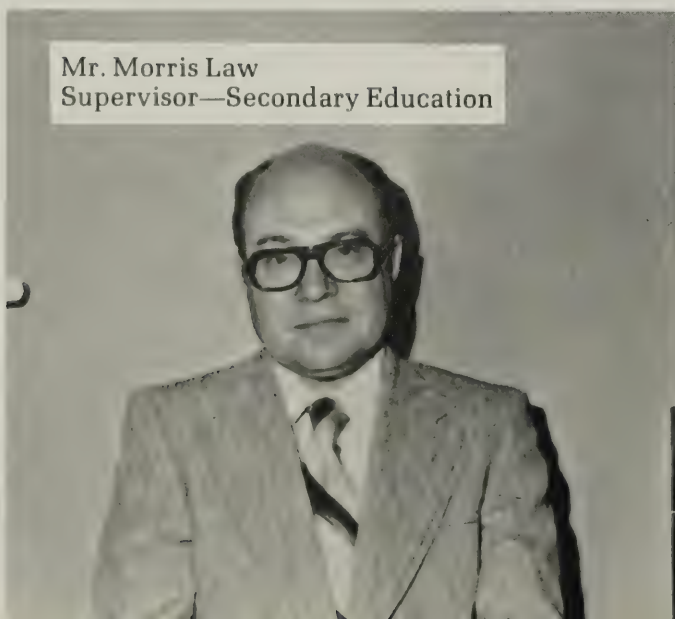

They strived to keep the instructional program and the building program up-to-date in order to meet the increasingly varied needs of both the students and the community.

Mr. T.A. Haretey
Director of Instruction

With Mr. Jerald Hubbard as Principal and his assistants pictured in this section, the image of Franklin County High School was continually changing. There was a sense of unity between the Administration and the student body. They gave of themselves time to confer or supervise, whether it was in the office, the cafeteria or on the school grounds. The curriculum was reviewed periodically in trying to provide the best education opportunities for each student.

Secretaries Aid Students And Faculty

Playing an important part in the effective functioning of the school was the secretarial staff. Numerous duties had to be performed each day. Taking care of official school correspondences, acting as receptionist, checking absentees, writing records of students, and preparing permanent student folders are but a few of the endless tasks performed daily.

Transportation For Education —A Necessity

Traveling daily in all directions and in all kinds of weather throughout Franklin County, bus drivers were faced with a tremendous responsibility. For the first time activity busses were available to take students home from meetings and practices. Special recognition is given to the personnel and to the drivers for handling assignments with patience, intelligence, and efficiency.

Cafeteria Affected by Sluggish Economy

Although the economy continued to falter, during this bicentennial year, Mrs. Poindexter and the staff planned, prepared, and served well-balanced meals to the faculty and students. Meals were always served under relaxed and comfortable conditions.

FCHS Faculty

Faced with the task of teaching, the faculty of Franklin County High School arose as competent leaders with a ready solution to most problems.

The installation of knowledge into the students' minds was not sufficient. Each member of the faculty was well Qualified in persuading students to develop their talents and abilities, in teaching them to profit from new ideas, and in helping the young students to realize the significance of each new opportunity.

Students found that words were inadequate to express their appreciation for the deep devotion shown to each student by the educators. Instead, the young people of FCHS gave their fullest admiration and respect to those who had so unselfishly given of themselves so that each person might stand individually and independently. Yes, those were the days when the students worked with the faculty and administration in acquiring a new and prosperous education for the near future.

The Spirit of Achievement

Oh, the joys of being in class. Some of the best things are the people, freedoms, and the good times, all contribute to the making of a great class. We work long and hard to achieve our goals in class. Some of us express ourselves through making a small piece of sculpture, while others may express themselves through writing compositions.

Mr. Hylton explains surveying to Gary Pickeral.

Bicentennial Graduates — Seniors 1976

In the Spirit of '76 this year's graduates celebrate a historical happening and a personal plateau. They contemplate their futures with an eye to America's past. Whether looking backward or gazing ahead, they pause now to appreciate this moment and those whom have climbed alongside them. 1976 — an ominous prospect: college career, new friends, the forever and ever. Amen.

Behind the Scenes

A scenic view of FCHS campus.

The Franklin County cheerleaders seem excited as our basketball game gets under way.

What would the games be like without a band? Through practice and hard work Franklin County High School band was able to blend a variety of sounds.

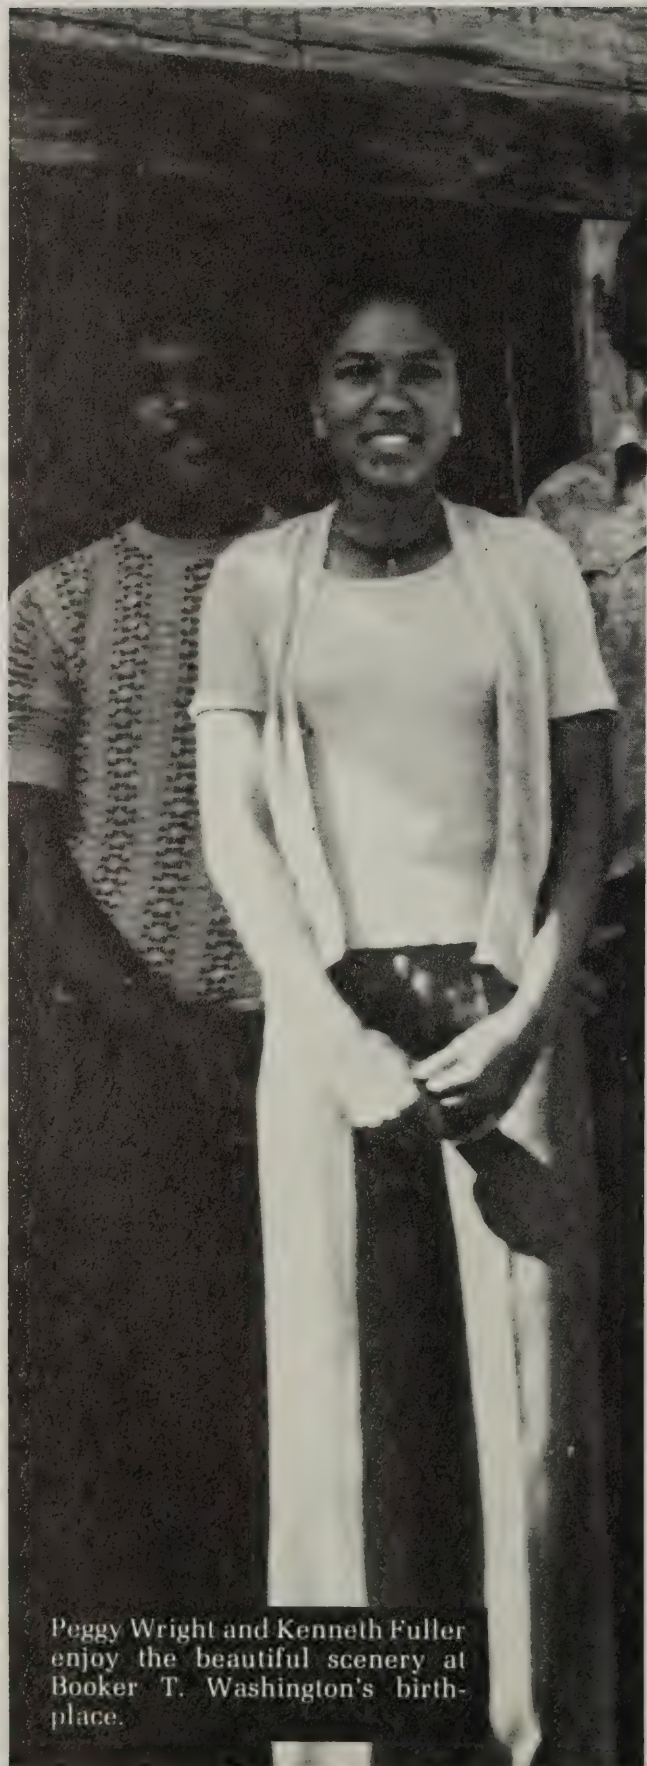

Dana Goss seems to be in a trance as she walks across the choir room.

Wayne Compton and Beth Hodges seem to be really enjoying the free time they have to be together.

At FCHS

Eagle Life

Peggy Wright and Kenneth Fuller enjoy the beautiful scenery at Booker T. Washington's birthplace.

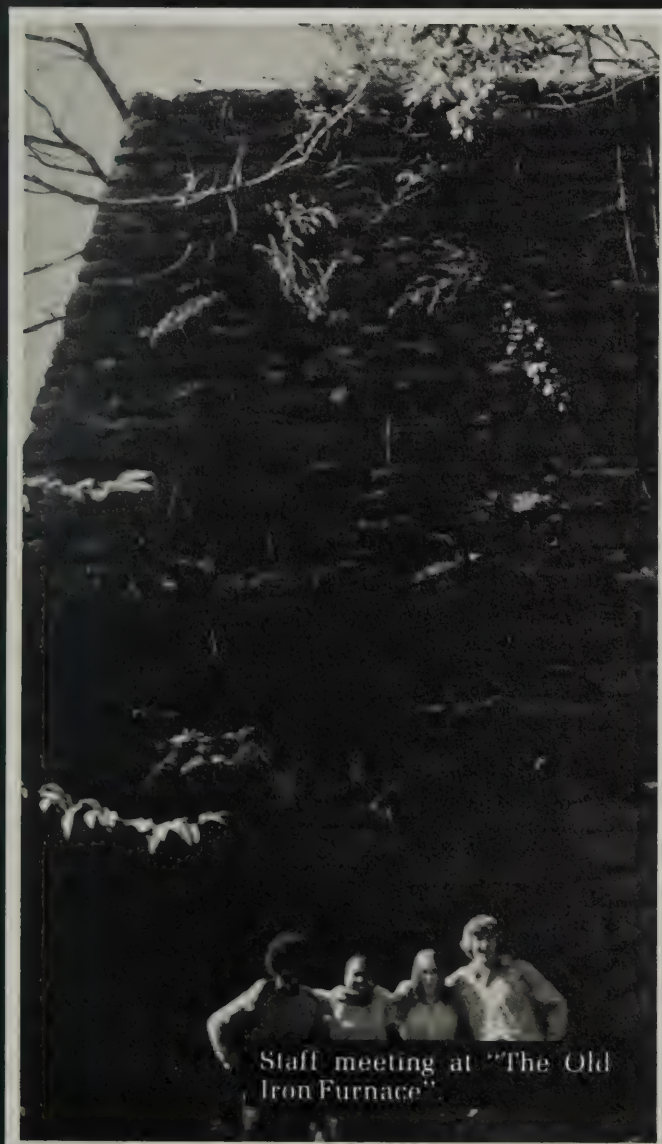

Deborah Kasey, robe custodian, is checking the robes to see if they are all there.

Cynthia McGhee and Debra Jones are filing music in the music room located in the Fine Arts Building.

Junior staff member McDaniel joins sophomores Stanley and Brown at First Baptist Church.

Staff meeting at "The Old Iron Furnace"

"What better place to build a pyramid than on the front lawn of the Franklin County Court House."

Sophomores: Cliff Hammock, Cindy Hall, Myra Dillon, Wayne Compton, Ingra Poindexter, Mike Laury, Mimi Allman and William Boitnott.

As the Homecoming Court nervously awaited the final results the name "Myra Dillon" echoed over the field. As the tearful Queen was crowned her radiance shone brightly through the dreary, drizzly weather. The irksome defeat from William Fleming didn't dampen the excitement of Homecoming. The dance turnout was greater than ever, as the students and alumni danced to the theme song "One of these Nights".

The SCA Works

The Student Cooperative Association belongs to all the students enrolled at FCHS. Officers from each homeroom and club delegates are sent to the Student Council meetings to represent their groups. There they try to solve problems and needs in the school. Their activities include sponsoring assemblies, magazine sales, baby picture contests, showcase decoration, and Senior Day. Functioning under the principal of providing learning experiences for students, they also contribute to the development of good citizenship. The SCA is involved in working with teachers and administrators to create harmony among students and faculty. In their efforts, they promote intellectual, physical, social, and moral growth. The SCA is important to insure a communication line between students and faculty.

Mind Expansion — that's what chess is all about. And that is just what the FCHS Chess Club is meant to do. The Thirty-five members and their sponsor Mr. Keith Hubbard engaged in battles of wit to develop thinking ahead, strategy, cunning, and fair play. When a person joins the chess club, all he needs is an interest in chess and want to improve chess as a game in this area. And when members are good enough for competition, there are tournaments and matches within the school and also with other schools.

The Bible Club is a study group that meets twice a week. It is a nondenominational group, so anyone of any religion can join. The purpose of the club is to read and study passages from the Bible to worship together in a way that resembles Sunday School. Having begun in January of 1974, the Bible Club is now two years old and going strong. All the members combine faith to share worship, beliefs, prayer, and learning experiences.

There is no limit to the number of people who can attend the meetings, or join if they so choose. No one says whether or not anyone has to go at all, it is by choice. There are no officers, it is run by them too. It is a club that welcomes all religions and if a person has none, they can learn how to worship at these meetings. The goals of the group are to follow the Great Commission found in the New Testament, Mark 16:15.

Distributive Education Clubs of America

Distributive Clubs of America are organizations which prepare students for careers in wholesale, retail, and service selling establishments. The two Franklin County clubs consist of one-hundred-six students and their sponsors Mr. Cecil and Mr. Simmons. Together they work to create a solid foundation in marketing techniques by combining school and on-the-job-training. DECA is also an organization interested in many varied activities. One example of this was the March of Dimes Walk-A-Thon. Field trips are also included on the activities list. Included are trips to: Tanglewood Mall, Kroger Distribution Center, Phillip Morris Tobacco Company, and C.H. Robbins Pharmaceutical Company. There is also the Distributive Contest in Danville and one in Roanoke.

The four points of the DECA symbol (a diamond shape containing a box — right) stand for vocational understanding, civic consciousness, social intelligence, and leadership.

DECA I

As the 1975-76 school year opened, a distinctive group of people were brought together. We call these people Dramatists. The Dramatics Club is smaller this year, but the quality and concern of each member creates the force to inform other of our interest. In November the "Play-makers" kicked off their season with the comedy, "HARVEY", which was a smashing success to say the least. For those of us who understand drama and its true purpose, we realize that none of this would have been possible without those two unforgettable characters, Sarah Brown, director and Derek Brown, technical director.

As time goes on and drama flourishes, we may recall what Shakespeare once said . . . "We are all actors and the world is the stage."

We Are All Actors

Lord, to think I had to be an accomplice to such a crime! Pooka Ha!

Elwood, I want a sandwich NOW!

Oh, Uncle Elwood you know there's no such thing as a rabbit named Harvey.

And The World Is The Stage

Well let me see Harvey,
I don't think I have a date tonight.

This is my beloved mother
the late Mrs. Dowd.

Aunt Ethel, don't hurry off,
Harvey just adores beautiful, older, and sophisticated women.

Yes, Aunt Ethel this is Harvey — the Pooka right here next to me!

Service, Education, Progress—FBLA

One of the basic policies of the FBLA is to develop competent business leadership and to keep all members informed about current policies, practices, and procedures in National and State FBLA work. In October a walk-a-thon was held to raise money for the March of Dimes at which time $3,650.00 was raised. FBLA members entered Regional and State competition.

“Toward New Horizons”—FHA

Members of the Future Homemakers of America believed that the community was the emphasis of 1975-1976.

Members were aware of the growing problems of the world and sought to help by exploring the causes of these problems.

The activities sponsored by the club included a party for Senior citizens, Easter egg hunt for children at Day Care Center and Teacher Appreciation Day.

Our chapter composed of 53 members is active in the Star Federation.

FFA: Learning

This year's FFA, 129 members strong has participated in many community and school projects. With a purpose to strengthen instruction for vocational students, the Franklin County chapter of the Future Farmers of America entered and placed in many local agricultural related events. The sponsors of the club, Mr. D. E. Hylton, Mr. L. H. Hylton, and Mr. A. E. Williams were assisted by the President of the club, Van Flora. Besides their annual Citrus Fruit sale and the creation of a float for the Christmas Parade the FFA attended numerous conferences and camps.

"Spanished out" would be an appropriate phrase at the end of a Spanish 1 year. It is mostly cram and more cram to get ready for another year.

It is not all "que tu's" and "que you's" but a real learning experience.

A new language broadens the mind as well as experience.

Debaters Do The Job

The debate team under the leadership of Mr. Jerry Saleeby was active this year. Their main objectives were to enable students to better themselves in competition with other students, to gain a better understanding of the techniques of research, to develop good speaking qualities, and to learn to think quickly and accurately. The team worked to develop their objectives in an eager way.

First Row: William Boitnott, Charles Payne, Jr., Joey Whitlow, Martha Jefferson, Sherri West.
Row 2: Carla Johnson, Philip Bernard, Lisa Holland, Bob Hammock, Ramona Porter, Kathy Holcomb. Last Row: Debbie Martin.

The Forensics Team was organized to develop communication skills, to develop appreciation of literature, to increase analytical thinking, and to develop personality and poise. The team participated in various forensic activities coordinated by the Virginia High School League and at all organizational levels.

Keeping Up With the News at FCHS

The Eagle Staff, as usual, published interesting papers throughout the year. With Mr. Karl Edwards as advisor, and assistance from the Franklin County Times, they produced papers interesting to the FCHS students and teachers.

FCHS Band

The Band, under the direction of Mr. James Bateman, Jr., entertained at pep rallies, athletic events, assemblies, and parades. Many hours of practice was needed to prepare for each performance. Before athletic contests, audiences were at their peak of excitement when the stage band started to play and all spectators rose to clap in unison.

Adding charm and warmth to the group were the majorettes and the Flag Corps who performed to perfection during half time ceremonies.

Choirs Strive

Under the direction of Mrs. Frances Keen the F.C.H.S. Choirs tried to obtain a higher goal in singing, and to learn to use their talents to benefit themselves as well as others.

The combined Choirs gave many concerts at school and in the community. They were excited about performing, for the first time, before Senior Citizens Groups in Rocky Mount.

The Choir Council consisting of members from each choir worked together to plan activities in which the choirs participated.

The Common Defense

Provide For

Undersized Eagles

Competing for the last year in the tough Western District the Eagles only won 2 games, despite this we finished out of last place and were in all but a few of the losses. The two big highlights of the season were the upset win over Andrew Lewis and our first district win in two years against Pulaski County. FCHS was one of only 4 schools to score 13 points against E.C. Glass in almost three years, and despite being defeated by state AA champion Martinsville the 24 points we scored against them was the most they relinquished all year. Two players, Butch Jenkins and Mark Allman, made Honorable Mention Northwest Region while Jenkins, Wayne Compton, Gary Gilmore, and Larry Brooks all were on this year's "All-Metro team. This year's team should be congratulated on creating excitement, if not a winner.

Another hot summer practice.

Lacking recognition and fan support this year's JV football squad fought hard all year long and only fell short of a few touchdowns of having a winning season. Despite the fact the Jayvees did not practice by themselves and played most of the season with Freshmen the younger Eagles deserved all the praise they received. The future seems bright for these players as they move up to the Varsity.

Team Shows Much Determination And Effort

"Jump Ball" with Halifax

The girl's basketball team, posted only one victory this season. Despite the disappointing season, it proved beneficial by giving valuable experience to returning cagers.

The girl's victory came against Pulaski County. The team showed much determination, effort, and teamwork but proved no match against the powerful foes in the Western District. The season was favorable though, as prospects are high for a bigger and better season next year as much experience will be retained by next year's team, for only two players, P.J. Mason and Ruby Dunn leave this year.

New Gym Creates Excitement As Eagle

Alvin McEnheimer drives for two against Botetourt.

Co-Captain Mandel Dudley arcs one toward the basket.

This year's edition of the FC basketball team began the season with a series of setbacks. Not only was the team unable to win a game in their district, but injuries and drop-outs has, at times, lowered the number of players on the team to just 6. Despite the lack of height and experience, the team managed to stay close in most of their games. After finishing third in the FC Tip-Off Tourney the Eagle's only other victory was against the William Byrd Terriers, on the loser's floor.

The only seniors on the squad, Mandel Dudley and Jeff Tuning served as Co-Captains and were the leaders of the team but there were many other fine individual efforts.

The new gym, where all home games were played, may not have inspired the Eagles to win many games but the excitement that it created was shared by the team and the stands.

The Varsity Cheerleaders played a large role in the creation of school spirit. The girls and their sponsor, Miss Walhberg, strived continuously to encourage enthusiasm, support, and sportsmanship at the "Home of the Eagles". Hard work was displayed during football games, basketball games, pep rallies, and sponsoring sock hops after the games. Also, they did their utmost to make the Homecoming '75 the best ever.

Support To Team

Junior Varsity Cheerleaders: Sherry Gibbs, Jill Henderson, Dixie Griffith, Mimi Allman, Laura Firebaugh, Lisa Pickeral, Cynthia McGhee.

Bridging the gap between victory and defeat on a junior varsity level was a task accepted, challenged, and overcome by the Junior Varsity Cheerleaders. These girls aroused Eagle support, the Junior Varsity players, and spurred the team members to many fantastic performances.

"Change is Not Always Progress. You are old enough to remember the Good old days if you can remember:
When you left your front door open.
When you went to church and the preacher preached from the Bible.
When a girl was a girl, when a boy was a boy, and you could tell them apart.
When even the word "socialism" was a dirty word.
When the poor were too proud to take charity.
When a nickle was worth five cents.
When you bragged about your hometown, your state, and your nation.
When the flag was a sacred symbol.
When this Government stood up for Americans.
When everyone knew right from wrong.
When things were not perfect and you didn't expect them to be.
When people still have the capacity for indignation.
When sick meant that you were not feeling well.
When people expected less and valued what they had more.
When everyone was not entitled to an annual wage whether he worked or not.
When a man's word was his bond.
When America was the land of the free and the home of the brave."

What A Year — Dynamic '76

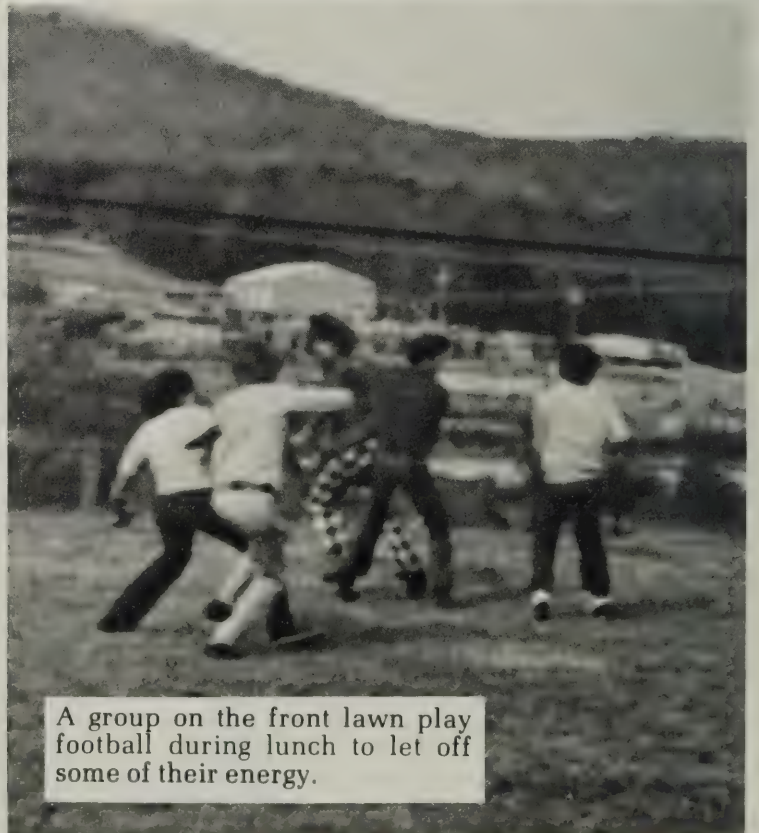

1975-76 was a great year for all of us. We experienced teachers participating with students in activities that happen yearly around the school, also new friends were made. Each year presents happy moments and memories that will last forever.

Mandel Dudley and Mike Board are on the job as hall monitors as they hassel Gayle Fike.

Students and teachers enjoy the presentation of the twelve days of school during the first pep rally.

A group on the front lawn play football during lunch to let off some of their energy.

Vicki Kiker, along with Eagle fans, enjoy the basketball game.

Clif Hammock stared in amazement at the new addition to the school, the choir room.

Mr. Brown gives his time and artistic talent to all students enrolled in his classes.

Happy, Carefree Days

Butchrett escorted by Keith R. was one of the Queens of the Homecoming court.

Steve Nichols was "Supervisor of Decorations" for the Junior Miss Pageant.

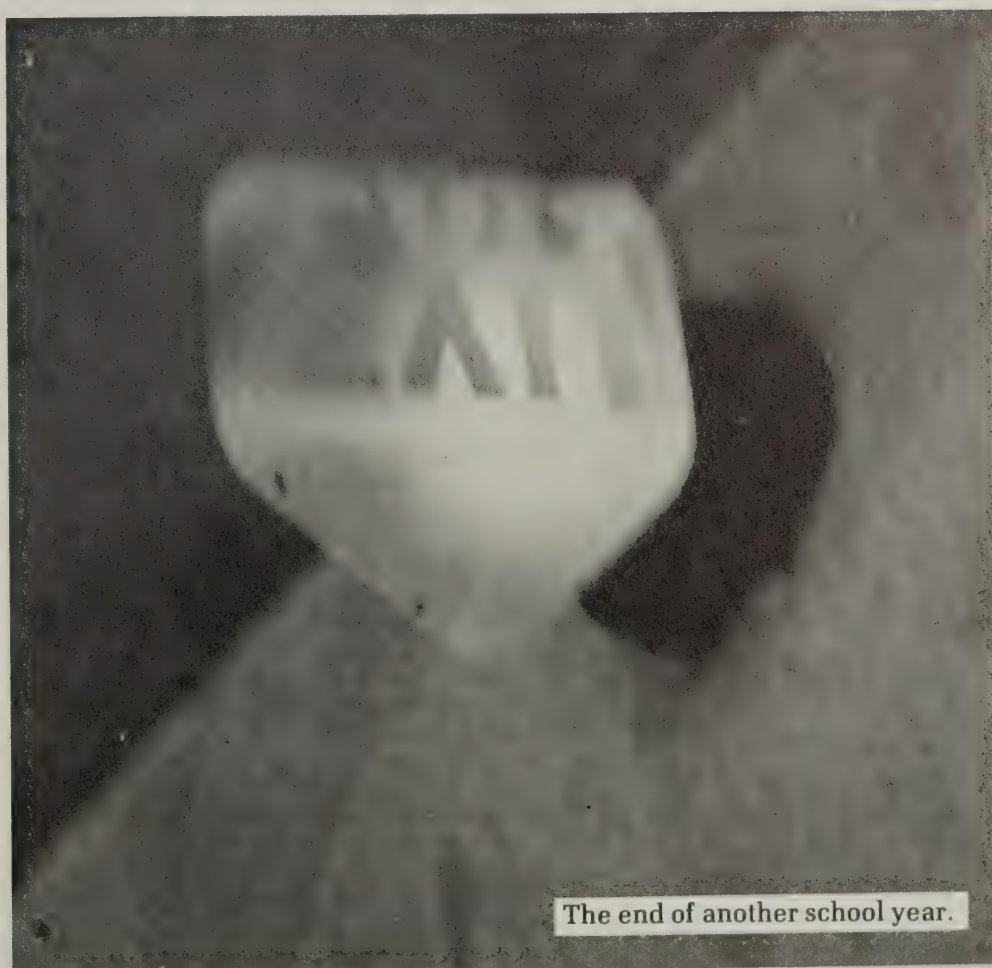

Mechanics are kept busy working on the school buses.
